The program gives an exciting opportunity to study Russian language and Siberian culture in one of the most spectacular places in Russia – in Siberia, where the rich cultural heritage of Siberian natives is maintained in the present. The course contains two components (cultural and linguistic) and covers a balance of language skills (speaking, listening, reading, and writing), grammar at an appropriate level from beginner to advanced and includes 252 academic hours of tuition, extra-curriculum and cultural activities. Classes take place in the mornings and afternoons.

Student Evaluation

Participants' progress is assessed on an ongoing basis through homework, assignments and performance in class; they receive verbal feedback from their teachers on every lesson and written feedback with their homework.
